DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

1. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

2. Claims 6, 13, and 14 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Morck.

Morck discloses a fluid spraying apparatus comprising a spray gun having an inlet, a reservoir for a fluid to be sprayed (column 3, line 40), a connector means 30 connecting an outlet from the reservoir to the inlet of the spray gun in use, the connector means being releasable for detaching the outlet from the inlet, wherein the connector means comprises at least one resilient clip 33 on one of the reservoir and spray gun engageable with an abutment on the other of the reservoir and spray gun to resist axial separation of the reservoir and spray gun (see Figure 3), wherein the reservoir outlet and spray gun inlet are connectable by push fit and the resilient clip comprises a spring leg arranged to extend substantially parallel to the direction of movement of the reservoir outlet towards/away from the spray gun inlet and the abutment comprises a ledge transverse to the direction of movement such that the spring leg engages behind the ledge at 32 when the reservoir outlet is connected to the spray gun inlet, and wherein one of the spring leg and ledge has a cam face arranged to deflect the spring leg when the reservoir outlet is connected to the spray gun inlet to allow a distal end of the spring leg to pass the ledge and latch behind the ledge to secure releasably the reservoir to the spray gun. Although Morck does not disclose permitting rotation of the outlet relative to the inlet while the reservoir is attached to the spray gun, it would have been obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made that since the outlet section of the reservoir connects to the inlet of the gun via the spring leg abutting the ledge as recited and is not permanently attached by molding or gluing for example, the outlet can be at least slightly rotated relative to the inlet, thus meeting the limitation of permitting rotation of the outlet relative to the inlet while the reservoir is attached to the spray gun. Claim 14 would have been a matter of design choice since it involves a change in the positions of parts which will still carry out its intended function properly.

Allowable Subject Matter

3. Claims 7-12 are objected to as being dependent upon a rejected base claim, but would be allowable if rewritten in independent form including all of the limitations of the base claim and any intervening claims.
